

Two astronauts are stranded. One may have ended a crewmates life, the other may have illegally checked their spouse's bank account. Should they live out the remainder of their lives, evacuate, or let the space force come after them?