

Synopsis

Situated in a yard of a home, a flower's pistil keeps to herself. The lonely narrative soon shatters when a female hummingbird takes an interest in Gynoeci's monologues. This is unnatural as Humin should only listen to the flower's stamens. Besides wings, Humin spreads Gynoeci's message to the other flowers. This, however, draws ire from the instinctive climate. A breeze would frequently send Humin into the homestead's window. Each visit is not only an impact on her physical health. They also blow out her inner feelings.

